Ah, ok, as long as there is nothing missing, no harm, no foul. Thanks for double checking!

Well...this is a little embarrassing. I was moving quickly and apparently mis-numbered the sets. I never did send a set 3 or a set 5. I looked in my sent messages, and there was just what you listed below. I also checked my outbox, which occasionally hangs on to messages and doesn't send them, and there was nothing there. And last, I checked our shared drive folder with the records I'd gathered to send to you, and compared them with the emails I sent. I did send everything in there. The problem was just me hurrying and naming the emails wrong – I do apologize!

Hi Stephanie,

Thanks for sending these documents. In the emails received last night, I received emails with subject lines:

set 1

set 2

set 4

set 6

set 7

set 8

I did not receive anything described as set 3 or set 5. Can you resend those if they were meant to be sent?

Thanks!

Dear Dan,

I'd like to get this out to you today, so I'll just limit this message to saying that I've again redacted the records as beyond the scope of the request or under exemption 6, which protects privacy. When you see a record with non-consecutively-numbered pages, please know that the pages I've removed were beyond the scope of the request. That seemed cleaner than sending you 6 or 7 pages in a row of black redaction.

There's more to send, but because of some training I need to do, it will likely be Wednesday before it goes out.

Regards,
Stephanie
